Dear year 2,

I have been asked to help the Tear Thief. She is very upset because children's tears are poor quality tears. They are making the moon fade away.

Not all tears are the same because jealousy tears are poor ~~poor~~ tears because they mean you're jealous about something. And some tears are red like rubys because they are tears of anger. Orange tears are are tears of envy they can make the moon disappear quickly.

I have been trying my best to push you to only cry jealousy tears or anger tears for a good reason.

If we only cry poor quality tears we will be in danger because the moon will fade and then we will have no light but you could also cry good tears and it will brighten up the moon and then we'll have a bright moon.
